

Biography for Dennis Rosebrough

Dennis Rosebrough is the Director of Communications for Indiana Lieutenant Governor Sue Ellspermann. His responsibilities include overseeing the media relations and communications for the executive office, as well as her six state agencies. Dennis joined the State of Indiana in 2005 as Communications Director at the Family and Social Services Administration and then took on the role as Deputy Commissioner at the Bureau of Motor Vehicles. Most recently he served as the Communications Director for the Indiana Department of Insurance.

Prior to state government, Dennis had a 25-year career at the Indianapolis Airport Authority where he initially was Personnel Director and then Public Affairs Director overseeing media, government, and community relations. His government service began with the City of Indianapolis as a department public information officer and Mayor Bill Hudnut's first Press Secretary.

Dennis attended Valparaiso University where he received his Bachelor of Arts in Political Science. He is from Indianapolis where he currently resides with his wife and daughter.